First session coming soon!

Academic Integrity at La Salle: A Conversation

This spring, the Teaching and Learning Center will focus a portion of its programming on issues of academic integrity and their impact on the La Salle University community. The goal of these programs is to foster a climate of open and reflective dialogue among students, faculty, and staff – not to rehearse well-worn assumptions about issues such as cheating or plagiarism, nor to place blame for instances of academic dishonesty on any particular group. The series will culminate with a half-day workshop designed to help participants synthesize the information provided over the course of the semester and to make recommendations for how the University might best seek to improve the level of academic integrity at the institution.

The format for these sessions will be that of a facilitated dialogue around a particular topic, aided by a short reading that participants will be asked to prepare ahead of time. Session participants will include students, faculty, and staff – all are asked to RSVP for the session(s) they would like to attend so that reading materials may be distributed in advance of the session. It is hoped that all who attend at least one session during the semester will also participate in the end-of-semester workshop.

Contact Sabrina DeTurk (deturk@lasalle.edu or ext. 5005) to RSVP and to receive your reading materials.

TOP TEN SIGNS THAT YOU'RE AN ART WORLD TOKEN:

10. Your busiest months are February (Black History Month,) March (Women's History,) April (Asian-American Awareness,) June (Stonewall Anniversary) and September (Latino Heritage).
9. At openings and parties, the only other people of color are serving drinks.
8. Everyone knows your race, gender and sexual preference even when they don't know your work.
7. A museum that won't show your work gives you a prominent place in its lecture series.
6. Your last show got a lot of publicity, but no cash.
5. You're a finalist for a non-tenure-track teaching position at every art school on the east coast.
4. No collector ever buys more than one of your pieces.
3. Whenever you open your mouth, it's assumed that you speak for "your people," not just yourself.
2. People are always telling you their interracial and gay sexual fantasies.
1. A curator who never gave you the time of day before calls you right after a Guerrilla Girls demonstration.
